

Skip to main content

r/lego X

Search in r/lego

Create

r/lego • 1y ago
InsidiousCannoli

New to the hobby, curious to find out when sets retire

Question

As the title says, im new to the Hobby. Well, I haven't build legos in about 27 years since i was 8. Im very interested in the Lord of the Rings Lego sets. I would like to get the Rivendell set along with the Barad-Dûr. However, both are expensive and I would like to wait to buy them so i can pay a few things off. How can I find out when they retire sets? I haven't seen it on the Lego website and I wasn't sure if any website/resource would have that information. Thank you all, happy building!

Archived post. New comments cannot be posted and votes cannot be cast.

1

16

Share

Sort by: Best ▾

Search Comments

MegaDragonKing • 1y ago

Great Ball Contraption Fan

Brickeconomy.com is best - it estimates retirement dates with an over 80% accuracy (LEGO never actually release this information as they only decide to retire a set 3-6 months ahead of time). I've used it loads and it's very accurate for bigger sets especially. It has 10316 retiring in December 2026 and 10333 retiring in December 2027.

6

Award

Share

r/lego

JoinLEGO - News from a Studded World

Reports, news, pics, videos, discussions and documentation from a studded world.

/r/lego is about all things LEGO®.

Created Mar 23, 2008

Public

799K21K

Weekly Brick Fans Weekly Brick Fan Contributions

USER FLAIR

Exercise_Status

COMMUNITY BOOKMARKS

WikiGlossaryOfficial LEGO® Sites ▾r/lego FAQ

R/LEGO MISSION STATEMENT

Skip to main content

1

Create

information when they retire them. I figured I wasn't looking at the right place.

Looks like I may have some time lol

MegaDragonKing • 1y ago

Great Ball Contraption Fan

Ye hopefully - keep your eye out on Brick Fanatics though, as this is where information often gets reported first when they do decide to retire them. As I said above, you should have 3-6 months warning, but the sets can get desirable and hard to find in this period. I don't think they'll last much longer than the Brickeconomy estimates even if they do last a long time though :)

LegoLinkBot • 1y ago10316-1: The Lord of the Rings: Rivendell [\[Photo\]](#)10333-1: The Lord of the Rings: Barad-dûr [\[Photo\]](#)[deleted] • 1y ago

Realistically, they retire when they retire and that is only accurate information anyone can give you. Sure, there is estimations but they are just that, estimations and they can be either on point or very wrong.

InsidiousCannoli OP • 1y ago

Thank you. As long as there is at least a little heads up before it retires then im not too worried lol

[deleted] • 1y ago

PICS, VIDEOS, DISCUSSIONS, AND DOCUMENTATION
FROM A STUDDED WORLD!

MEGA THREADS (MT)

Please read the MT wiki page for more information.

Parts Identification MTWhat Is It WorthFlexies of InterestLEGO Art MosaicLego Themed Awards

SUPPORT FOR UKRAINE

Skip to main content

1

Create

Mean-Pizza6915 • 1y ago

The LegoLeak subreddit usually has pretty good info. There's no official source that says when sets are retiring.

j3xperience • 1y ago

There is a running Google doc that gets updated fairly frequently.

OutrageousLemon • 1y ago

As Mean-Pizza6915 said, the spreadsheet linked in the Legoleak sub is the only accurate source of information - some other sites use this info so may be correct but most don't. That list is pulled directly from Lego's own data, so is the current accurate expectation of retirement date for all sets. However they are reviewed by Lego periodically but it's certain you'll get at least 6 months' notice of retirement by using that list.

Brickeconomy is garbage and should not be used for anything - it literally estimates retirement dates based on trends in the theme, which makes it consistently wrong. Brickset also doesn't use accurate retirement dates.

Currently Rivendell is due to retire at the end of 2026, Barad Dur at the end of 2027.

MolaMolaMania • 1y ago

Brickset is the place to go. Every set has a part inventory, retail price, release date and retirement day if known or suspected.

BLACK LIVES MATTER

SCAM?

Skip to main content

1

Create

Barad-Dur was released on June 1, 2024, so it should be available for another two years.

LEGO 10333 The Lord of the Rings: Barad-dûr | Brickset

Neither of these sets has a known retirement date listed. . yet!

j3xperience • 1y ago

Not always. If rivendell is still selling, they can change the retirement date. It all depends on performance of set. The LEGO Assembly Square modular outlasted alot of modulars simply because it kept selling. A lego city camper van did too. Usually city lasts for 6-9 months, I think that one did 2-3 years before being axed.

MolaMolaMania • 1y ago

Oh, agreed! However, I think there's less of a chance of that because while LOTR is an iconic trilogy, I don't think it has the same level of pop culture saturation as Star Wars, so I doubt there will be the same consistent level of demand.

j3xperience • 1y ago

I think alot of people who aren't LOTR fans would buy rivendell vs barad-dur. I'm not a huge LOTR fan but that would be my choice as it just looks stunning compared to a big black tower.

MolaMolaMania • 1y ago

R/LEGO RULES

- 1 LEGO® Only
- 2 NO LEAKED IMAGES!!!
- 3 No Hate Speech
- 4 Keep it Civil
- 5 No Spam
- 6 No Selling, Trading, or Free Giveaways
- 7 No Charity
- 8 No MT Posts outside of MT
- 9 No Obfuscated Access

Skip to main content

1

Create

display and I don't anywhere for it to live out of the box.

I'm also much more of a builder than a trophy collector, so I would eventually take it apart and sort it so that I could make my own MOCs.

LegoLinkBot · 1y ago

10316-1: The Lord of the Rings: Rivendell [\[Photo\]](#)

10333-1: The Lord of the Rings: Barad-dûr [\[Photo\]](#)

11 No Multiples

12 No LEGO vs LEGOS

13 No Naked HUMANS

14 No Memes

15 Do Not Post

POST LOCKING REQUIREMENTS

Posts will be locked if the following conditions are met:

-When a large number of rule breaking comments arise. (Such as when a post hits r/all and a majority become unpleasant).

ALL OUR RULES IN DETAIL

Click the button to view all of rules laid out and explained, as well as the behaviour expected when frequenting r/lego.

View All /r/lego Rules

/R/LEGO POST FLAIRS

/r/lego Competition

Advent Calendar